Brownstone Technology Solutions Launches Redesigned Website

Website is user-friendly, contemporary, and provides updated content and resource centers

(Redondo Beach, CA—October 22, 2009...) Brownstone Technology Solutions has launched its redesigned website, www.brownstonets.com to increase communication with all visitors. The contemporary, user-friendly redesigned website presents a new design that is easier for visitors to navigate, as well as a plethora of information on the many benefits of the point-of-sale software, BPOS. The site also highlights BTS' IT services and its newly-launched resource center which offers news, white papers, downloads, and blogs on point-of-sale systems, video surveillance systems and IT security.

Ashley Felts, assistant director of marketing, says, "The redesigned website is part of our preparation for the launch of our new POS software, BPOS. By creating a more content-rich website, hospitality clients will be able to see all of the product's benefits, capabilities, and technical specifications. The new site also showcases company news through its event calendar and activities page, as well as the resource center which was launched in October."

The redesigned website offers easy-to-use navigation, links to social media sites, and multi-media information on products and services. Visitors can also download brochures covering different products and topics on the site, as well as client newsletters. In upcoming months the blogs on the resource center will be expanded as well as the articles and white papers.
